the best record in the league. - RB: Eddie Lacy, Seattle Seahawks: Lacy has been back from injury, and he's been great since he's come back. He's averaging 4.3 yards per carry and 14.6 yards per reception. If you're looking for a top-five fantasy pick this season, look no further than Lacy. - WR: Brandin Cooks, New England Patriots: This year, he had a 54/164/5 line last season. This year, he has a career-high 8/140/2 line so far. Last season, he had a WR14 ranking in standard leagues. This year, he has a WR15 ranking in standard leagues. His target share has jumped, but there's still room for improvement. You can definitely play the matchups with Cooks, and play him with confidence. - TE: Jimmy Graham, New Orleans Saints: There's not much else to say about Graham. He was the only tight end last year to score at least 10 touchdowns, and he already has 11. And he was the only tight end last season to score more than 50 receptions. - TEN: Derrick Henry, Tennessee Titans: Henry played a minor role in last season's run to the playoffs, but he exploded for 85 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries against the Titans in Week 15. He's still not a guaranteed lock for a 50-reception, 800-yard season, but he's a top-three fantasy play for any of the top three tight end positions. - WR: Doug Baldwin, Seattle Seahawks: While there are a lot of good options for fantasy WRs, Baldwin still has to be the pick of all of them. He has been on fire, and he's still near the top of the league in yards per catch and receiving touchdowns. The only time he didn't finish with at least four touchdown receptions and 110 receiving yards in a game last season was Week 4. He had only one game with two or fewer touchdowns last season, and he now has two this season. It's only going to get better for Baldwin this season. - TE: Austin Hooper, Atlanta Falcons: He was the third-overall pick in the 2016 NFL Draft, and he hasn't disappointed. He has a career-high 4.5 yards per 82157476af
